

Food Marketplace Compliance and Trust

Food Marketplace Compliance and Trust

Any eligible seller may use the Food category; Vossie does not create a completely separate food-seller identity.

Do not use “buy at your own risk” as the product message

That weakens trust and does not replace applicable obligations.

Product approach

Food listings should require stronger structured information and traceability:

- ingredients,
- allergens,
- prep/availability time,
- seller identity,
- food-specific reviews,
- order/batch/preparation timestamps where useful,
- clear report-food-safety flow.

Seller responsibility

Vossie provides platform rules, guidance, traceability and incident handling. Sellers remain responsible for meeting applicable food laws and campus requirements.

Incident flow

Food safety report → evidence/order linkage → urgent Operations review → affected listing/batch/seller may be paused → trace related orders → escalate according to policy.

Production dependency

Actual compliance requirements must be validated with Eduvos and relevant municipal/environmental-health authorities. Do not hard-code a broad “student exemption.”
